America the Beautiful

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain.
For purple mountain majesties,
Above the fruited plain.
America! America! God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea.

O beautiful for patriot dream,
That sees beyond the years.
Thine alabaster cities gleam,
Undimmed by human tears.
America! America! God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea.

Music provided by Polished Brass.

Academic Dress

From the costumes worn in the academic procession one can tell the level of degree (associate's, bachelor's, master's, doctor's) the wearer has earned, the field of learning, and the institution that granted the degree. The costume consists of cap, gown, and hood.

The usual cap is a square black mortarboard with a black tassel; the doctor's cap has a gold tassel. The gown is also normally black. Associate's, bachelor's and master's gowns are relatively plain and closed in front; the doctor's gown is cut fuller, is open in front, has velvet panels down the front, and has three velvet bars on the sleeves. The panels and bars are usually black.

The hood, patterned after the medieval monk's hood, goes over the shoulders and hangs down in back. The hoods for the three degrees vary in length from the bachelor's the shortest, to the doctor's the longest. The velvet border shows by its color the field of learning; the most common are: white - arts, letters, humanities (usually seen in honorary doctor's degrees); dark blue - philosophy (the most common in doctor's hoods); purple - law; scarlet - theology; green - medicine; golden yellow - science. The same colors may be used in the panels and bars of the gown. The most distinctive part of the costume is the silk lining of the hood which bears the official colors of the institution granting the degree.

2009 Commencement Speaker

The Honorable Steven Chu, PhD The Secretary of Energy of the United States

Dr. Steven Chu, a distinguished research scientist and co-winner of the 1997 Nobel Prize for Physics, was appointed by President Barack Obama as the twelfth Secretary of Energy and sworn into office on January 21, 2009.

The son of scholars who left China to teach in the United States, Dr. Chu was born in St. Louis in 1948. After earning undergraduate degrees in mathematics and physics from the University of Rochester and a doctorate in physics from the University of California, Berkeley, he joined the AT&T Bell Laboratories in 1978. There, his research interests included the use of lasers to cool and trap atoms -- work that led to the Nobel Prize for Dr. Chu and two colleagues.

In 1987, Dr. Chu left Bell Labs for a post at Stanford University, where, in addition to continuing his work on laser cooling and quantum electronics, he became interested in molecular biology and polymer physics. At Stanford, Dr. Chu and three other professors launched the Bio-X program, focusing on interdisciplinary research involving biology, engineering, and the physical sciences.

In 2004, Dr. Chu was appointed director of the U.S. Department of Energy's Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory and joined the Department of Physics and the Department of Molecular and Cell Biology at the University of California, Berkeley. Dr. Chu became immersed in energy and climate issues, and under his leadership the Lawrence Berkeley National Lab developed a reputation for energy research, particularly involving solar and biofuels applications.

In testimony during his confirmation hearing before the U.S. Senate, Dr. Chu called for reduced dependence on foreign oil, cleaning up wastes from the nation's nuclear weapons production program, greater investments to capture and store carbon emissions from coal-fired power plants, a cap-and-trade system to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, a continued commitment to nuclear power, and a long-term plan for waste management and disposal.

In announcing Dr. Chu's selection as Energy Secretary on December 15, 2008, President Obama said, "The future of our economy and national security is inextricably linked to one challenge: energy. Steven has blazed new trails as a scientist, teacher, and administrator, and has recently led the Berkeley National Laboratory in pursuit of new alternative and renewable energies. He is uniquely suited to be our next Secretary of Energy as we make this pursuit a guiding purpose of the Department of Energy, as well as a national mission."

Dr. Chu is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, the Chinese Academy of Sciences, the Korean Academy of Sciences and Technology, Academia Sinica and numerous other professional and civic organizations. He has received honorary degrees from ten universities.

2009 Award Winners

Meg Clark

House-Bruckmann Award

Meg Clark, a faculty member in the Business Technologies Division, earned a Bachelor of Science degree in education from the University of Cincinnati in 1985. After working as a financial analyst for NCR Corp. and as a credit analyst for Central Trust Bank (now PNC), she earned a Master of Business Administration degree from Xavier University in 1989.

Ms. Clark has been at Cincinnati State since 1991, teaching evening students as an adjunct before she was hired full-time in 2001.

In addition to teaching finance and other traditional courses, she has worked extensively with the Tech Prep program. She has also developed three online courses, and has been involved in a statewide effort to develop a Tech Prep pathway for the Business Financial Services curriculum.

"She approaches every task with the enthusiasm and desire to do it the best it can be done," said Donna DuVall, Associate Dean of the Business Technologies Division, during a recent ceremony to honor Clark. "Meg is one who never gives up."

DuVall noted that Ms. Clark consistently receives positive reviews from her students.

"Miss Clark's classes are high energy, and her enthusiasm is contagious," one student wrote.

"Thanks so much," another wrote. "I may even take another finance class!"

Larry Feist

House-Bruckmann Award

Distinguished Alumni Award

Larry Feist, a Cincinnati State graduate, is currently chair of the Renewable Energy major in Cincinnati State's Center for Innovative Technologies – the first such major to be approved by the Ohio Board of Regents. In the two years since its inception, the program has achieved enrollment of more than 80 students.

Mr. Feist earned an Associate of Applied Science degree in electro-mechanical engineering technology from Cincinnati State in 1983, and in 1988 earned another AAS degree in computer engineering technology. In 1991 he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering from Wright State University.

As an instructor at Cincinnati State, Mr. Feist has also introduced and helped develop the Industrial Design Technology program. He serves as program chair for that and for the Electro-Mechanical Engineering Technology program. And, the Cincinnati State Alumni Association has named Mr. Feist the recipient of the 2009 Distinguished Alumni Award.

Outside of the College, he chairs the Energy Task Force Team for Cincinnati Mayor Mark Mallory's Climate Initiative Program; serves as a board member of the Civic Garden Center; and is a frequent speaker on energy issues at schools and conferences. Mr. Feist is also a member of a committee at Cincinnati State that is trying to reduce the institution's impact on global climate change.

Colleagues say he is dedicated to making his hometown a center for research, development, and commercialization of renewable energy technologies.

According to Paul DeNu, Dean of the Center for Innovative Technologies, under the leadership of Mr. Feist and his colleagues, Cincinnati State has become "the leader when it comes to renewable energy and sustainable design."
